Car-motorcycle crash kills Iron County man

An Iron County man was killed and five persons were injured in four area traffic accidents Sunday, the highway patrol announced today.

The fatality was the 17th on Southeast Missouri roads this year, compared to 32 at the same time last year.

The fatal accident occurred at 7:55 p.m. Sunday on South Main Street in Ironton when a southbound motorcycle driven by Claude Matkin, 25, of Arcadia attempted to pass a southbound car driven by Dennis Dempsey, 18, of Pilot Knob.

The Dempsey car turned left and the Matkin motorcycle struck the car, causing the motorcycle to run off the road and strike a concrete culvert.

Duane Tannebecker, 25, of Arcadia, a passenger on the motorcycle, was rushed to Arcadia Valley Hospital at Pilot Knob, where he died.

Two persons received moderate injuries in a two-vehicle accident at 2 a.m. Sunday on Highway 53, two miles north of Quin.

The accident occurred when a northbound station wagon driven by William Edward Pitts, 27, of Chicago, Ill. struck the rear of a northbound pickup truck driven by Leo Simpson, 62, of Quin.

Both drivers received moderate injuries and were taken to Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

One person received moderate injuries in a one-car accident at 1 a.m. Sunday on Highway 67, in Wayne County, 17 miles north of Poplar Bluff.

The accident occurred when a southbound car driven by Stanley Gotier, 45, of St. Louis ran off the road, struck an embankment and overturned.

Gotier received moderate injuries and was taken to Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Two persons received minor injuries in a two-vehicle accident at 12:30 p.m. Sunday one mile west of Burnot on Highway 143 in Wayne County.

The accident occurred when a westbound pickup truck driven by Richard A. Phillips, 21, of DesArc, pulled from a gravel road onto Highway 143, went across the center line and struck in the left front an eastbound car driven by Tom Brawley, 62, of DesArc.

Injured were passengers in the Brawley car, Margaret A. Brawley, 60, of Des Arc, wife of the driver, and Linda S. Brooks, 22, of DesArc.

Both were taken to Wayne Medical Center at Piedmont.

Carter to complete anti-inflation plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is putting finishing touches on his anti-inflation program after a weekend of fishing, tennis and Easter services in Calhoun, Ga., two whiskers bigger than his hometown of Plains, but just as relaxed.

Carter got back to work today with staff and Cabinet meetings and lunch with Vice President Walter Mondale.

Aides said Carter will reveal his anti-inflation program later this week, probably at a news conference. They said he will outline Latin American policy in a Washington speech to the Organization of American States, also later in the week.

Carter got a warm sendoff from Calhoun, a north Georgia textile town of about 6,000, where his oldest son, Jack, 29, an attorney, heads a group of investors in a soybean elevator.

After a sunrise service for the family on Jack's back porch, the Carters attended Easter services at the First Baptist Church. Pastor Bob Maddox asked "that our country might flourish as never before" under Carter's leadership.

The President told a Bible class before the Easter services: "I am close to God and I do pray often and seek His guidance."

Carter's anti-inflation program is expected to include what Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal describes as labor-management committees to keep track of wage and price trends.

The committees were suggested by AFL-CIO President George Meany, who rejected Carter's proposal that labor and management give the government advance warning before increasing prices or demanding higher wages.

Meany called pre-notification "a foot in the door" to formal wage and price controls.

Blumenthal disclosed the labor-management committee plan last month to a meeting of The Policy Forum, a New York group of business leaders. He said Carter also intends to strengthen the Council on Wage and Price Stability.

Meany has urged Carter to abolish the council. It is part of the government's machinery for monitoring inflation, which took its biggest jump in 2½ years in February.

Carter's speech to the Organization of American States is likely to touch on human rights, one of his favorite foreign policy themes. Alejandro Orfila, secretary general of the OAS, has called for renewed efforts to establish an inter-American court of human rights.

2 shoplifting arrests made

Two persons have been charged with petit larceny following separate shoplifting incidents in Sikeston Saturday.

Charged following an incident which occurred at 7:24 p.m. Saturday at Big K Department Store, on Southland Drive, was Michael Carey, 847 Matthews Ave.

An employee told officers of the Sikeston Department of Public Safety he saw Carey put on a pair of men's leather shoes valued at $17.99 and leave his old shoes under a table at the store. Store employees called police and followed the alleged shoplifter to the parking lot, where the shoes were recovered.

The theft of several small items valued at a total of $9.27 from the TG&Y Family Center was reported by a store guard about 5:40 p.m. Saturday. The guard said he observed the woman, who allegedly at first gave her name as Pamela Sue Smith, with the items. The woman was later identified as Mary Elizabeth Wade of New Madrid.

The items recovered were a purse, several pairs of panties and lotion. The lotion and panties were found inside the purse, and the tag had been removed from the purse.

Woman suffers smoke inhalation

A Sikeston woman was treated for smoke inhalation and released Sunday at Missouri Delta Community Hospital following a fire in her mobile home.

Treated was Candy Hurt, 102 Chris Drive. Firemen responded to the call at 9:22 a.m. Sunday to the house trailer, which is owned by W. A. Garner, 506 Coleman St. The trailer sustained smoke damage in the fire, which was classified as an electrical fire.

Second Soviet ship halted for violations

Associated Press Writer

A Soviet trawler was brought to dock at Boston today while a second Soviet ship was under Coast Guard control, the first two Soviet ships taken for violations of the United States' 200-mile fishing zone.

The gray and white trawler Taras Shevchenko docked at the Boston Coast Guard base shortly after 9 a.m. as its crew stood at the rails listening to rock music on transistor radios.

Coast Guard lawyers and representatives of the U.S. Attorney's office immediately boarded the ship.

The 275-foot ship, with a crew of 93, was seized late Saturday after the Coast Guard said it discovered the craft was carrying more than her allowed quota of river herring.

The Coast Guard announced Monday that a second Soviet ship, the Antanas Snechkus, had been ordered into Boston from 160 miles east-southeast of Nantucket. The action took place on Sunday, the Coast Guard said, and the vessel was being escorted to Boston.

"Isn't that beautiful," said U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds, who was at the dock to watch the Taras Shevchenko tie up.

"Look at those flags," he said in reference to the trawler sailing with the American flag flying from her foremast and the Soviet flag waving at her stern. This is routine: the flag of the host nation is flown on a forward mast.

The Coast Guard said the second vessel, a processing ship measuring 503 feet, was discovered carrying contraband fish. The Coast Guard did not name the species.

The Coast Guard said the cargo of the second vessel was seized, not the ship itself. But to seize the cargo, the vessel had to be taken into custody.

The crew of the Taras Shevchenko will remain on board, with the gangway guarded and small craft prevented from approaching it.

The Antanas Snechkus, a transport refrigerator ship, acts as a support ship to fishing ships, a Coast Guard spokesman in New York said.

He said it was the first time that the Coast Guard had taken control of a nonfishing Soviet ship. "We've never had one like this when we just seized the cargo. This is new ground for the Coast Guard," he said.

The Antanas Snechkus has a crew of 63 persons. It was built in 1974 and is home-ported in Klaipeda, Russia.

The Coast Guard has issued more than 60 citations and warnings to Soviet fishing vessels since the 200-mile limit went into effect March 1.

"We've released several of them," President Carter said of the Soviet ships as he left Easter services in Georgia on Sunday. "But we just had to draw the line somewhere. We informed the Soviet Embassy this past week we couldn't continue to release them, that we had to enforce the law."

Authority over impounded ships passes to the U.S. Attorney in Boston after the ship reaches the docks and is searched by customs officials.

The Taras Shevchenko was between 60 and 100 miles inside the limit when it was boarded about noon Saturday by a party from the cutter Decisive, the Coast Guard said. The vessel was officially seized about 10 hours later for allegedly catching and keeping about 3,500 pounds more than its quota of river herring, which, under licensing provisions, may account for only 1 per cent of the total processed fish aboard, the Coast Guard said.

Lt. Cmdr. Thomas Nunes, chief of the Coast Guard's Maritime Law Enforcement branch, said there were four tons of the fish — or 1.2 per cent of the catch — aboard the vessel.

"We have a gross violation here, and we may find more as we go through the ship," Nunes said after the seizure.

Under the Fishery Management and Conservation Act of 1976, foreign vessels can catch and keep only specific amounts and types of fish from certain areas within the 200-mile limit for which they have been issued permits.

The maximum penalty upon conviction of criminal charges is forfeiture of the ship, its equipment and catch. Civil charges carry a fine of up to $25,000 on each violation.

Supreme Court rules school fees invalid

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Public school districts are prohibited by the state constitution from charging any fees for school registration or participation in academic courses, no matter how minimal, the Missouri Supreme Court ruled today.

In the unanimous decision, the court held invalid fees up to $6.50 per high school student and course charges up to $15 for driver's education charged by the Caruthersville School District 18. The seven-member court held the charges violated the constitutional guarantee of "free schools for the gratuitous instruction for all persons."

"I don't think there's any doubt about it, that it's going to have an impact on numerous school districts," said William Wasson, deputy commissioner of the state Department of Education. "A safe guess might be a third (of the 550 districts). Actually it might be something more than that."

"It comes at a time when school districts are already faced with financial problems and are considering cutbacks in teachers and courses," Wasson said.

The court, however, declined to rule on a claim that requiring students to furnish materials for courses such as notebooks or gym clothes also violated that constitutional provision. Judge James A. Finch, who wrote the opinion, said such a decision should come after that issue has been fully aired in a lower court trial.

The challenge to the fees was brought by Concerned Parents, an association of adults living in the Caruthersville district, some with children in school, and of 13 school children. Their suit, originally filed in 1975, was dismissed by Pemiscot County Circuit Court Judge Rex Hensen last June on a technicality.

The association had sought return of all charges made since December 1972, claiming they totaled $35,000 by the time they filed suit. The high court issued no ruling on that matter.

In addition to challenging the fees, the group also said students failing to pay fees or furnish material and equipment for courses were penalized through withholding or reduction of grades.

"It seems perfectly clear that the language in (the constitution) provided that the legislature must establish schools to which admission is without charge and that instruction was to cost the students nothing," the court said.

Noting that 22 states do not have similar constitutional guarantees, the court cited a 1927 Missouri case, the only other case in state history on the subject, and adopted part of that decision.

"The right of children ... to attend the public school established in their district for them is not a privilege dependent upon the discretion of anyone, but is a fundamental right which cannot be denied except for the general welfare," the court's opinion quoted.

The high court rejected contentions by school district officials that the constitutional provision was not absolute and that tuition or fees are permitted to be charged in some instances. The court cited those exceptions and said they involved only situations where students were not residents of the district or did not meet the qualifications entitling them to free schooling.

Also rejected was the school district's argument that the fees were only nominal and did not violate the constitution.

"The issue," the court said in refuting that argument, "is not whether the fees are reasonable. It is whether they are permissible, and we have held they are not."

The court also said that if charges totaled $35,000 over nearly three years, it did not consider that a minimal amount.

2-vehicle accident injures 4 persons at local intersection

Two Sikeston residents and two persons from Mount Carmel, Ill., were injured in a two-car collision which occurred at 9:25 p.m. Saturday at the intersection of South Main Street and East Kathleen Avenue.

All of the injured were treated in the emergency room at Missouri Delta Community Hospital and released.

Paul Terrell, 38, of 520 Coleman St., a passenger in a car driven by Ruth Terrell, 36, of the same address, was treated for multiple strains and a scalp bruise. Ruth Terrell was treated for mild neck strain.

Also treated were two passengers in the Terrell car, Don Daniel, 46, and Charlene Daniel, 42, of Mt. Carmel, Ill. The man was treated for back strain and the woman was treated for neck strain.

The Sikeston Department of Public Safety reported that the accident occurred when a car driven by Laura E. Lea, 17, of 108 Wickwood, struck the Terrell car in the rear as it was attempting to make a left turn onto Kathleen Street from South Main Street. Both vehicles were northbound in the inside lane of South Main Street at the time of the accident.

Both vehicles were towed from the accident scene.

Rabin draws $1,500 fine

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin was fined $1,500 today for holding an illegal bank account in the United States that forced his resignation, the Finance Ministry said.

His wife Leah was ordered to stand trial for having actually operated the account of $21,000, a communique said.

The fine was considered a token sum, recognizing the fact that although Rabin was a cosignatory to the account, he did not actually use it.

Rabin agreed to pay the fine and drop his insistence on standing trial with his wife "in order to protect the dignity of the office of prime minister," the state radio reported.

Money, handgun among articles reported stolen during weekend

The Easter weekend brought a flurry of larceny reports to the Sikeston Department of Public Safety.

The theft of a brown wallet containing between $250 and $300 was reported by the owner, Barry Lee Wallace, 130 Norval Ave. Wallace told officers the money and wallet were taken from his unlocked car while it was parked at the Kingsway Shops parking lot on South Kingshighway at about 6:20 p.m. Saturday. The wallet had been left on the front seat of the victim's car.

A .44-caliber magnum handgun worth $110 was apparently taken from its owner's home as he slept Friday evening. Bobby Ray Robison, 1512 E. Kathleen Ave., told police the theft probably occurred between 3 and 6 p.m. while he was taking a nap. The house was unlocked at the time of the theft. The gun had been hanging in a holster in a closet.

Ruth N. Scherer, 107 William St., reported the theft of a personal checkbook, maps and a pillbox containing a few pennies from her car, which was parked behind TG&Y Family Center at 4:30 p.m. Friday.

The stolen items were taken from the glove box of the car. The woman told officers she thinks the car was still locked when she returned and discovered the theft. The left front door of the vehicle was damaged, leading officers to speculate that entry may have been gained there, and the door relocked following the theft.

A pair of boots valued at $23 was taken from a rack at Skate World, 1207 E. Malone Ave., late Friday evening or Saturday morning.

The theft was reported to police by Thersie I. Church, Sikeston Route Two, who said the boots belonged to her son, who left them on the storage rack and discovered them missing when he returned to it.

WHY BAN SACCHARIN?

By MARVIN STONE

How capricious does our Government intend to be — and how far can it be allowed to go — in limiting freedom of choice by individual citizens?

That question is at the heart of the controversy over saccharin, which the Food and Drug Administration proposes to ban because of evidence that it is a cancer-causing agent in force-fed Canadian rats.

Saccharin is the only noncaloric sweetener still legal in this country and is used by virtually every American — in tooth paste, soft drinks, canned fruits and vegetables, gelatin mixes, candy, chewing gum, medicines.

Since its discovery in 1879, saccharin has been known to produce cancer in humans, so it is not surprising that the FDA has fallen under attack as being arrogant, absurd, unscientific and irrational.

At the moment, whether any or all of that is true is beside the point, because of the Delaney Clause. This 1958 amendment to the Food and Drug Act directs removal from the market of any food additive shown to cause cancer in people or animals. The FDA has no choice, because of the results of the Canadian tests, but to follow the letter of the law.

Because of the public's uproar, hearings have started in Congress to weigh the pros and cons both of the Delaney Clause and of the dangers of saccharin itself.

Experts who testified in late March in favor of banning saccharin stand foursquare behind the Canadian tests in which 17 of 200 rats contracted bladder tumors after being fed saccharin equivalent to human consumption of 800 to 1,200 diet sodas a day. The FDA itself feels the tests are scientifically valid, but the real difficulty, it is admitted, is gauging the implications for humans.

It is the suspicion of some that the FDA, as one arm of the Government, is using its palpably unpopular saccharin decision to bludgeon another arm, the Congress, to do away with the Delaney Clause once and for all. If this be so, it is cruel to use as a weapon the apprehensions of the country's 10 million diabetics who need and use saccharin medically, and tens of millions of others who sincerely believe that heart disease and cardiovascular ailments are far more common threats to their health than saccharin-induced cancer.

From the start, the whole saccharin mess has been surrounded by a hypocrisy on the part of the Government. What is wrong with allowing Americans to make themselves aware of the arguments for and against the use of saccharin and then leaving them alone to make a free choice — much as they now are free to make a choice whether to smoke tobacco or, for that matter, whether to take the risk of driving on highways that claim 45,000 lives a year?

Surely people in Washington have learned by now that, when common sense has fled from Congress and the bureaucracy, public outrage soon surfaces, and sometimes prevails. Prohibition of whisky, well intentioned as it may have seemed, failed as unenforceable. More recently, seat belts with ignition interlocks provoked a citizen revolt strong enough to force repeal.

The Delaney Clause, while meritorious on the whole, needs to be changed to provide more flexibility. It offers no alternative to an outright ban on saccharin and as such prohibits voluntary decision making.

Americans need not be treated like a mindless mass, with the most personal decisions stuffed down people's throats through restrictive legislation.

The proper approach with saccharin is to tell people in plain English what may be the risk of using it, and let the people decide for themselves whether the risk is worth taking.

As matters stand, the "state" is interfering in decisions that individuals should be making. At best this is capricious and condescending. At worst it is a growing danger and has gone far enough.

SO FAR, SO GOOD

All those editorial writers and columnists who said nasty things about Indira Gandhi owe her some sort of apology. If Mrs. Gandhi showed every indication of becoming a tyrant during the last two years of her 11 years as prime minister of India, she is one of the few tyrants in history to relinquish rule through the democratic process.

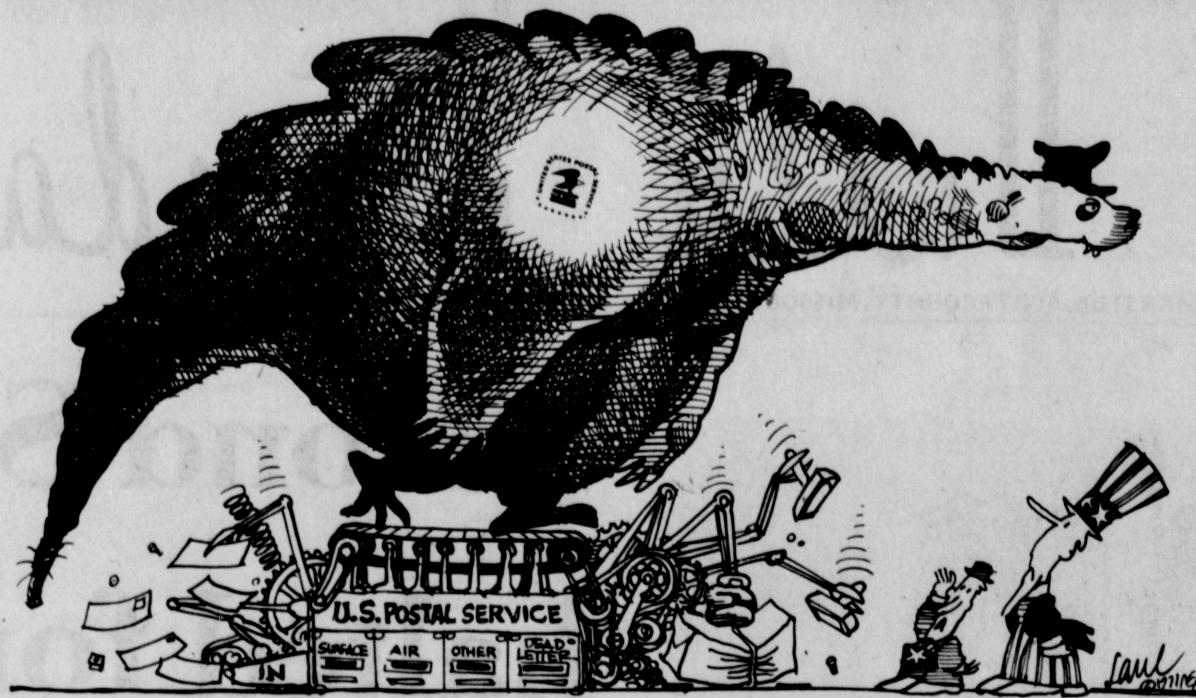

But while it is gratifying to see the "world's largest democracy" reassuming that title, the jubilation over that fact in this country may be as excessive or premature as the fears formerly expressed for India's future under Indira Gandhi. Democracy still has a hard row to hoe in the subcontinent before we can say it has been established for good and all.

Mrs. Gandhi's Congress Party, which had ruled India continuously during the 30 years of its independence, was massively repudiated at the polls. But the winning Janata (People's) Party and its allies represented a melange of opposition candidates from across the political spectrum — socialists, centrists, right-wingers — who were united for the first time only by their determination to unseat Mrs. Gandhi.

This is both good and bad. In a democracy, especially a parliamentary democracy such as India's, a party must accommodate all kinds of ideologies in order to govern successfully.

It remains to be seen, however, whether the Janata-led coalition will maintain its unity or whether, now that it has achieved its immediate purpose, it will fall into factional squabbling, with resultant governmental paralysis, if not chaos. It should also be remembered that even though it has been reduced to a minority, the Congress Party is still the largest single political bloc in the Indian parliament.

But that is to borrow worries. It is enough for the moment that democracy has returned to India — as much to our pleasant surprise as to Indira Gandhi's dismay.

HIS SUGGESTION IMPRACICAL

Former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, a minority party candidate for President, advocates an 11-month work year as a cure to unemployment.

The proposal sounds totally impractical for two main reasons.

One is that it would be impossible to run almost any business, including newspapers, only 11 months of the year.

The other is that it would not solve unemployment, since it would be impossible to hire anyone for one month only for work in those factories and businesses who would have to keep going through the full twelve months.

If you don't believe that, try to employ a trained employee for a few hours, a month, or even several months.

The only ones with whom it is possible to support themselves with only part time work are the elderly retired, most of whom either are unable to work, do not need the money, or don't want to work.

MR. GREENSPAN'S VISIONS

Everybody knows the world is running out of oil, eventually. But the real shocker, according to Money & Credit Report: It's running out of money to pay for a whole lot faster. Nobody is very anxious to admit it. Paying for oil is a problem that's supposed to have been solved. The world has "adjusted." That's the conventional wisdom, and neither policymakers nor economists are accustomed to refuting it — at least not while holding positions of public responsibility.

Alan Greenspan, chairman of President Ford's council of Economic Advisers, who has long since returned to his business consulting firm Townsend-Greenspan, no longer works under such a constraint. So he spoke the blunt truth the other day:

"Oil importing nations — that's about everybody outside of OPEC — are rapidly going broke. Either oil prices have got to come down — drastically — or economies that depend on oil have got to slow down drastically."

Those are the alternatives. It's that simple. If the OPEC cartel sticks together, you can probably forget about that. Consumption will have to be cut, either voluntarily, through harsh conservation steps, or involuntarily, through harsh conservation steps, or involuntarily, through sheer inability to import. Either way, it means a sharp drop in production from present levels.

Greenspan figures non-OPEC countries, collectively, must borrow "at least" $40 billion each year for as far into the future as one can see, just to keep factories humming and homes heated. That's $40 billion of new debt on top of $40 billion of new debt, this year, next year, the year after, and so on. And that's clearly impossible.

Borrowing is already becoming more difficult. Up until recently it was relatively easy. Debt was, by current standards at least, of unalarming proportions in 1974. Many countries had borrowed little, or not at all. Even relatively large borrowers still had untapped lines of credit. The world slump helped also. By cutting sharply into business demand for credit, it left international lenders with ample idle resources. Important, too, the slump eased the shock of the price hikes by cutting demand for oil.

Even with this, though, debt piled up in unprecedented amounts. The international credit structure, in other words, has been stretched closer to the breaking point. When that point will be reached no one can say.

The resulting slowdown in industrialized countries could become a downward spiral. At least, the world faces a prolonged period of sluggish growth.

The major countries are exhorting each other to "do more" to hypo the flagging world recovery. If the Greenspan scenario has any significance at all, it suggests that all such efforts at stimulus will, in the end, prove futile. Even the U.S. economy will succumb ultimately to the deflationary pressure of OPEC price hikes.

BILLIONS FOR DOG & CAT FOOD WHILE MILLIONS STARVE

Dog and cat owners in the United States spend over $2 billion for more than 7 billion pounds of dog and cat food each year — and elsewhere in the world, millions of humans are hungry.

Few if any people are against dogs and cats, nor would any of them want dogs and cats to starve, but our extravagances for our pets do seem slightly on the inhuman side.

There was a time when only table scraps, or now and then some cornbread with cracklings was all the dogs and cats got, but that was before the days of refrigeration. Nowadays in most homes, a cat or dog couldn't live long on table waste because there is so little of it.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Feds Gear for More Terrorism From Violence-Prone Groups

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — In the aftermath of the Hanafi Muslim siege in Washington last month, federal officials are bracing for the possibility of more hostage-taking by dozens of violence-prone groups.

Law enforcement experts from the State, Treasury, Justice and Defense Depts. have been meeting recently to devise methods to thwart future takeovers. Three special anti-terrorist units, the CIA's "Critical Collection Problems Committee," Justice's "Interdepartmental Committee on Internal Security," and the "Cabinet Committee to Combat Terrorism," are also trying to come up with solutions.

As in the Hanafi case, the intelligence experts have no idea where or when the terrorists will strike next. Some officials at the meetings have grumped that without illegal mail covers, wiretaps and break-ins, adequate data cannot be gathered. Such tools have largely been abandoned since Watergate and recent revelations of CIA-FBI abuses.

To replace these unconstitutional methods, some of the federal agencies are turning to sophisticated anticrime technology, but the results have been limited. The Customs Service, for instance, has set up a Terrorist Data Base containing 2,000 names and 5,000 passport numbers. Some suspects have as many as seven aliases.

The system helped identify an alleged Japanese terrorist in Honolulu last month, shortly before Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda arrived in the United States. The suspect was thoroughly searched, briefly detained, then put under surveillance. The computer also enabled agents to lock up a man who had threatened to kill Queen Elizabeth on her American visit last year.

Classified intelligence bulletins cite militant Puerto Rican nationalists and anti-Castro Cubans as the most likely groups to commit violence in the immediate future.

The Fuerzas Armadas de Liberacion Nacional de Puerto Rico (FALN) reportedly was behind the bombing last month of a New York building that housed an FBI field office. The same group blew up New York's historic Fraunces Tavern in 1975, killing four people and injuring 53. Meanwhile, the revolutionary Puerto Rican Socialist Party may soon be taken over by Florencio Merced Rosa, a young hothead who, say intelligence sources, had ties with an FALN "bomb factory" discovered last November in Chicago.

Some anti-Castro Cubans, headquartered in Miami, already are suspected of killing Chilean exile Orlando Letelier and many others. One anti-Castro group, the Frente de Liberacion Nacional de Cuba, according to an intelligence report, "is known to possess a large amount of C-4 explosives, which it may use against pro-Castro and Soviet targets ... if relations with Cuba appear to be improving."

The infamous Weather Underground is still considered a threat, as are the tiny Japanese Red Army, the violent wing of the Irish Republican Army, the leftist New World Liberation Front, and the Red Guerilla Family.

More exotic terrorist groups are also named in the intelligence bulletins.

The Rastafarians, a Jamaican-based religious sect that defies the late Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, now has 3,000 members in the New York city area. While many are law-abiding, some preach "the ways of the white man are evil," says a confidential report, and "terrorism has been increasingly associated with this group." The report urges "extreme caution" in approaching members of the group, who are also called "Dreads," "Rude Boys" and "Beardsmen."

Federal agents are also worried over possible terrorism by elements of the "Front de Liberation du Quebec," which seeks independence from Canada. "Members ... are believed to have connections with a number of European and Midwest terrorist groups," says a classified bulletin.

Kidnap Caper? A former Justice Dept. undercover agent secretly planned to stalk fugitive Robert Vesco, zap him with a tranquilizer gun and kidnap him from his Costa Rican hideout.

Ex-Marine pilot Larry Blaine Jividen boasted several times that he would be aided in the bizarre plot by the CIA, which once concocted the brilliant scheme of using a potato to make Fidel Castro's beard fall out.

Although some intelligence sources described the former Marine captain as a "big talker," he does have some cloak-and-dagger credentials. In 1972, federal narcotics agents arranged a phony Marine discharge for Jividen so he could act as an undercover operative in a big heroin deal between Morocco and the United States.

Although the operation fell through, Jividen received a formal commendation signed by Justice official Richard Kobakoff, formerly a CIA agent. The episode apparently whetted Jividen's appetite for a life of intrigue.

He made an appointment to see Kobakoff in November, 1974, with his sights set on a more daring adventure: the kidnapping of Robert Vesco from Costa Rica. American officials repeatedly have failed in attempts to extradite the financial scrofflaw from his palatial island villa.

Jividen tried to recruit Vesco's former pilot, Capt. A. L. Eisenhauer, by saying that an unnamed "sponsor" would provide aircraft and a clandestine plan. Jividen tried to recruit Vesco's former pilot, Capt. A. L. Eisenhauer, by saying that an unnamed "sponsor" would provide aircraft and a clandestine plan. Jividen tried to recruit Vesco's former pilot, Capt. A. L. Eisenhauer, by saying that an unnamed "sponsor" would provide aircraft and a clandestine plan.

Jividen would use a false identity to secure a plane, he explained. Then a go-between who knew Vesco would try to trick the financier into boarding the airplane where he would be laid low with a tranquilizer gun. CIA operatives in Central America would be available for support. Jividen insisted.

Eisenhauer acknowledged that he was contacted about the kidnap caper, but refused to participate. A spokesman for Kobakoff said the meeting proposed by Jividen never took place. Kobakoff vehemently denies that he knew about or sponsored any plan to kidnap Vesco. Jividen, reached in London, declined to comment.

TRY AN 'X' During a faculty meeting, several professors were discussing a star basketball player who was on the verge of flunking out of college. "The boy is certainly a great player," commented one instructor. "He can do anything with a basketball except autograph it."

LAMENT FOR LOST SLOGANS

The problem with this election is that there aren't any good slogans. Remember the optimism of "A Chicken in Every Pot"? How about the soothing quality of "Back to Normalcy"? Or the soul-stirring religious patriotism of "A War to End All Wars"?

Now in place of a "New Deal" or a "Fair Deal" we have the And a cynical country can't even believe that.

How can anyone get his mouth around "For America's Third Century, Why Not the Best"? That's probable why Jimmy Carter mumbles. He wore out his mouth muscles trying to say it.

And we're also put to sleep by "Vote for President Ford. He's Your President." Robin Hood put it better a long time ago when he said of a proposed new sheriff of Nottingham, "Better the devil you know than the devil you don't."

The best effort anyone's come up with is "A Ford, Not a Lincoln." And even that puts the Carter before the horse.

SENILITY OR BOREDOM? One of the cruelest putdowns society has ever played on the aging is to assume that their intelligence gradually declines and their ability to learn decreases with advancing age. It isn't so, a behavioral psychologist has just informed a national conference on genetics and aging Learning ability and IQ remain steady and perhaps even increase well into old age, behavioral studies now show. But often poor health and the lack of stimulating environment make it appear that the elderly are losing their mental acuteness. With everyone including the oldest themselves assuming they are on the mental decline, it becomes easy to give up learning.

The moral is obvious. Rather than sink—or permit oneself to be pushed—quietly into a comfortable chair in front of the television to wait out the sunset years, oldsters should assume they are capable of just as active and intelligent a life of the mind as they have ever had. What they need is good medical care by physicians who are not content to write off the problems of old age as normal or inevitable. Also good nutrition

But perhaps the most important is mental stimulation. The capacity of the mind does decline, like other skills, with disuse. Those who limit themselves to mental gruel should expect mental malnutrition.

So as we become less capable of great physical feats, it is comforting to realize that our brain can still be agile—if given the chance. What the aging process calls for is not slippers and television, but books, classes, intellectual challenge, and most of all the realization on the part of others that aging does not have to mean senility.

Inside Labor By Victor Riesel

Registration Ripoff?
Aliens — Legal and Illegal — could swing U.S. presidential elections under Instant Voter bill

WASHINGTON — Some elementary political arithmetic proves that an American presidential election could be hijacked by aliens — legal and illegal. And by thousands of specialists mass-producing false identification "ID" cards and documents.

In the opinion of a number of top government authorities entrusted with monitoring the mass movement of foreign nationals into the U.S. and according to Justice Department officials who developed the 1976 report on "The Criminal Use of False Identification," all that's needed to pave the way for the theft of a national election is the passage of the bill authorizing instant Election Day registration on the polling booth spot.

Immediately, this would facilitate the bypassing of citizenship as well as expediting illegal balloting by millions of aliens in key agricultural and industrial states, each with pivotal blocs of electoral votes.

Before we get to the more exotic mass producers and vendors of false identification, here is the political arithmetic on the aliens. Note that under the bill submitted by the inflexible, traditionally liberal Congressman Frank Thompson (D-N.J.), all that a voter would need would be a garden variety piece of identification — a driving license, a birth certificate (easily obtainable in some 7,000 vital records offices), a union card, a building security pass, a credit card, etc.

As of last Jan. 1, there were some 4.7 million legal (repeat-legal) aliens in the U.S. Of these, some 750,000 are legally employed in New York City. And there also are at least 1.5 million illegal aliens in the Big Apple out of an unlawful eight million aliens in the nation. These are the statistics the authorities use today.

Thus in the big town alone, we estimate there are enough adult aliens, some carrying the legal green card and some who are here against the law, to swing an election for President of the U.S. New York state does have 41 electoral votes.

In using these basic figures, I have ignored another vital, political statistic.

There are about 730,000 of the illegal aliens working in New York City for an average $3.29 an hour. This is just about a dollar above the minimum wage. Thus, actually there are some 1.5 million working aliens in the metropolis. All of them carry some kind of identification, which would, under the proposed law, make them instantly eligible to register and vote.

Atty. Gen. Bell says they wouldn't dare violate the election laws — old and new. Meaning no disrespect for the nation's top cop, some of us believe he'd better serve longer apprenticeship. Hasn't he heard of Jimmy Walker's old Tammany Hall? And of the old crooked Bronx Democratic machine which dug voters out of Woodlawn Cemetery? Or of the late Frank ("I Am the Law") Hague of New Jersey?

Only some two million people voted for President in New York City last year. A big alien turnout could swing the big town, and in turn, the state. Of course, this could also happen in Illinois, California and Texas.

There's simply no way of monitoring the activities of the alien — legal or illegal. Some half a million legal tourists turn themselves into illegal "permanents" each year. Some 38 million persons cross and recross into the U.S. each year through San Ysidro, Calif.

There, only half of the 23 vehicle inspection lanes are manned because of slashed staffs.

And at El Paso, Tex., there are 3,000 to 10,000 entering the U.S. each day.

Further, many illegal aliens are controlled by the underworld, according to U.S. Commissioner of Customs Vernon D. Acree. They're in narcotics smuggling bands and this makes for tough machine politics and vote delivery.

The Justice Department's criminal false identity investigation reveals that the net number of illegal aliens grows by 250,000 a year despite all police work, all surveillance by the Immigration and Naturalization Service and the customs forces.

Of course, there are potential blocs of criminal American citizens capable of creating false identities — especially in the ripoff and new radical circles.

There is, for example, the New Jersey engineer who created 300 "phony IDs" (identities). These he used to obtain 1,000 credit cards. Incidentally, he didn't hesitate to use them to steal $660,000 in false loans. What makes anyone believe he'd hesitate voting 40 or 50 times?

There is the "We're Queen" of Chicago. She whipped up 250 aliases. This nifty lady had 31 addresses. Also, three Social Security numbers. The aggrieved "widow" had records of eight "deceased husbands." Why wouldn't she vote 10 or 20 times?

A recent FBI survey of 500 names on its wanted persons list disclosed all had "active aliases" and some had more than 30 false identities. Why wouldn't they vote several hundred times? And what can stop the 1,000 credit card engineer, the queen and the most wanted? Occasionally they get caught when they bet too greedy. But on a voting spree...

Today's news in brief

Decrease in traffic deaths

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — There was a 19 per cent decrease in the number of Missouri traffic deaths during the first quarter of this year compared to the same period in 1976, the state Highway Patrol reported today.

From January through March, 201 persons lost their lives in traffic accidents compared to 249 during the same period a year ago. The greatest portion of the decrease occurred in rural areas.

Steel costs to be pushed up

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new contract covering 340,000 of the nation's steelworkers is expected to push steel prices higher, but not enough to worry the government's inflationwatchers.

"We all know that ultimately prices must cover costs," J. Bruce Johnston, vice president of U.S. Steel Corp. and chief industry negotiator, said after union officials ratified the agreement with the 10 largest steelmakers on Saturday.

Retiring Steelworkers Union President I.W. Abel said the final contract negotiated under his leadership was not inflationary.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability will review the pact, as it does all labor agreements. But Jack A. Meyer, the council's acting assistant director, said the contract was about what officials anticipated.

The new three-year contract provides steelworkers with an increase of 10 to 15 per cent over the current $8.08 average hourly wage. There are also provisions for incentive pay and cost-of-living increases in the contract, which starts Aug. 1.

Hourly wages will increase 80 cents over the three years in steps of 40 cents, 20 cents and 20 cents. Incentive pay will add another dime.

IRS is short tax returns

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service figures it is short about 20 million income tax returns, with only five days left until the April 15 deadline.

And millions of taxpayers who got their returns in early made mistakes, in part because of changes in the 1976 Tax Reform Act.

This year, about 9.5 per cent of the nearly 31 million persons filing 1040 forms by April 1 made mistakes, the IRS says. The error rate on the 23.1 million 1040A forms was even higher, 13.6 per cent.

One way to reduce the possibility of error, IRS officials say, is to let them calculate your taxes.

That provides the added benefit of not having to send a check to the government until it sends you a bill, probably several weeks from now.

The IRS will figure taxes on short forms if they contain necessary information on earnings and taxes paid. Tax bureaucrats can take care of the two calculations which seem to cause the most difficulty, the standard deduction and the general tax credit.

If you want to file your own taxes, but don't think you're going to get all the calculations made in time, the government offers an extension—but it may cost more money.

If you send a Form 4868 to the IRS by Friday, you gain a reprieve of 60 days. But if you owe the government taxes, you have to include an estimate of how much, and submit a check with the estimate.

If you underestimate, you will have to pay interest at an annual rate of 7 per cent on the unpaid balance. If you are off by 10 per cent, the government imposes an additional penalty of 1/2 of 1 per cent a month.

And if you expect money back, don't expect it too soon. The wait is about six weeks, the IRS says.

SALT failure may be costly

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Warnke, the United States' chief negotiator at the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT), says failure to reach an arms agreement with the Soviet Union would force this country to spend additional billions of dollars on defense.

"Unfortunately, that is the situation if we don't come up with an effective arms agreement," Warnke cautioned in an interview Sunday on CBS' "Face the Nation" television program.

Warnke, whose nomination to the job by President Carter was narrowly confirmed by the Senate, was guardedly optimistic that agreement would be reached even if it required a summit meeting between Carter and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev.

"We are prepared to deal at whatever level is necessary to reach an agreement we consider vital for the United States and the human race," he said.

Obscenity case appealed

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City has filed an appeal with the U.S. Supreme Court that would enable the city to enforce its obscenity ordinance.

The city is appealing a Missouri Supreme Court ruling made last year that forbade the city from enforcing the ordinance because the municipal court does not provide a jury trial in obscenity cases as required by the U.S. Constitution.

A backlog of cases has been building since then, pending the appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The state high court reversed the conviction against Robert J. Darby, who was convicted without a jury in municipal court of showing an obscene motion picture in 1973 in Kansas City.

The appeal states that the city's "2-tier judicial system" fulfills the Constitution's requirement. Under the system, a fine or sentence imposed by the municipal court for obscenity violations of the ordinance can be appealed to the circuit court, where jury trials are available.

Wanted - FBI Director

WASHINGTON (AP) — The committee looking for a new FBI director, running behind President Carter's schedule, does not expect to recommend possible successors to Clarence Kelley until mid-July at the earliest.

The committee is working under a mid-May deadline as it prepares to give Carter the names of five possible candidates to fill the FBI post. But Irving Shapiro, chairman of the panel, said, "We will not meet that deadline."

Shapiro said the committee probably will ask Carter for an extension. He added there isn't any urgency to the search because Kelley intends to stay in his post until Jan. 1, 1978.

The nine-member panel, planning its second meeting April 26, has drawn up a preliminary list of 41 candidates. Although four committee members and the staff director refused in interviews to identify any of the candidates, a source said no women made the list.

Plane contained surprise

DODGE CITY, Kan. (AP) — A four-engine DC6 aircraft carrying a big load of marijuana made an emergency landing about 15 miles north of Dodge City early today, the highway patrol reported.

A highway patrol spokesman estimated that the plane was carrying between 10 and 12 tons of marijuana. There was no estimate of its value.

The occupants of the plane reportedly fled in a waiting car, and a statewide alert was issued for them. Pilot identification papers were left on the plane. Authorities said two men in a fuel truck, apparently involved in refueling the plane, were arrested.

A patrol spokesman said the aircraft, registered in Colombia, South America, was believed to have landed for refueling and damaged its landing gear while setting down in a field near U.S. 283 in southwestern Kansas.

The landing took place in Hodgeman County, about 3 1/2 miles north of the Ford County line and about 2 1/2 miles south of an old auxiliary bomber air strip.

"To me . . . has God given this grace . . . to make plain to all men the meaning of that divine secret which he who created everything has kept hidden from the creation until now." (Ephesians 3:8-9 PHILLIPS)

What's the law? The case of the cola spoof

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Myron manufactured and sold posters to the public and made only a questionable living doing it. One day he got an idea that he considered so brilliant that he all but had to wear sunglasses in carrying it out.

He produced a poster that was a spoof on a popular soft drink advertisement and simply changed the slogan to "Enjoy Cocaine." And, to Myron's great financial pleasure, his posters sold like tickets to the Super Bowl.

Unfortunately, while Myron banked his profits like crazy, he didn't bank on the soft drink firm taking him to court for infringing on its trademark.

"He's confusing the public," insisted a company official. "Because of the similarity of our advertisement to his poster, people will think that the company is pushing cocaine."

"That's ridiculous!" responded Myron. "Everybody knows that the firm sells soft drinks and not hard drugs. Only an idiot wouldn't realize the spoof. Consequently, there is no possible confusion and no trademark infringement."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you order Myron to stop selling his posters because they were confusing to the public and were infringing on the trademark?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that the buying public includes a vast multitude of ignorant, unthinking and credulous people who are governed by general appearances and impressions. These people could easily conclude from Myron's posters, noted the judge, that the company was suggesting that they "Enjoy cocaine." (Based upon a 1972 U.S. District Court Decision)

Do you have questions about the medium security prison?

Many concerned citizens have raised valid questions about the proposed medium security prison. That is why in the recent city election the vote against the prison ran almost three to one.

Despite the outcome of this vote, an amazing claim has been made by the proponents of the prison. They have said on television and through media interviews, that they do not believe the vote was truly representative of the people!

There is going to be a meeting of all interested people Tuesday night, in the cafetorium of the Sr. High School. Are you interested? If you don't want the prison here, then you have a vested interest in this meeting, and we urge you to attend.

Pottery making demos will be given at TRCC

POPLAR BLUFF — A pottery making demonstration will be given at Three Rivers Community College, Tuesday, April 12, in the auditorium at 507 Vine St.

David Porter of Ellsinore will be demonstrating his skills from 9 a.m. to noon and 1-3 p.m. This will be an informal demonstration and interested persons are invited to watch Porter work any time during these hours.

The event is being sponsored by the Missouri Arts Council, Poplar Bluff Council on the Arts and TRCC.

Porter is a native of Flossmoor, Ill. He attended San Mateo College in California, 1964-66, and was graduated from San Jose State College in 1968. While at San Jose, he studied under Dr. Hubert Sanders.

After completing his formal education, Porter returned to his hometown and began working in ceramics. He remained in the Chicago area until 1973, when he and his wife bought a farm near Ellsinore.

Shortly after moving to the farm, they built a wood-fired kiln capable of firing at 2400 degrees Fahrenheit. Porter said the intense heat created by wood-firing enhances the appearance of the pottery and the wood ash which falls on the pottery melts and turns into a glaze which further enhances the beauty of the pieces.

Porter's wares are created individually on the potter's wheel. Traditional molds are not used. In addition to being unique artistic creations, his wares are functional. Some of his finished works will be displayed at the demonstration.

The clay Porter uses is from Missouri. About half of this clay is taken from local streams.

Restaurant Soup

"Restaurant" was originally the name of a soup invented in 1557 by a Frenchman named Palissy. The soup consisted of finely-minced fowl and broth highly spiced with cinnamon and coriander. In 1765 a tavern was opened in Paris under the title "Restaurant" for the purpose of supplying this soup.

Sales of garden seeds booming

Associated Press Writer

Sales of garden seeds are booming as millions of consumers take out homegrown insurance against feared increases in fruit and vegetable prices following a severe winter and the continued Western drought.

Americans turned to gardening in large numbers in 1974 and 1975, when food prices soared. The rate of price increases declined last year and so did the number of gardeners.

Now predictions of high prices ahead have boosted business once again, and retailers predict more backyard vegetable plots during the summer.

Supermarket News, a trade publication, said a survey of grocery stores showed new interest in seeds. Most stores said that 60 per cent of their seeds were for vegetables and 40 per cent for flowers. A few said the vegetable-to-flower ratio was 80-20.

Colonial Stores, an Atlanta-based chain, dropped seeds last year but reintroduced them this spring and has increased its stock.

An official of a Dallas supermarket said, "We already are experiencing more sales than last year and have some out-of-stock situations right now."

Prices for seeds generally start at 39 cents a packet — an increase of about a dime or so over recent years.

Burpee, the nation's largest mail-order seed company, sent postcards to regular customers, warning them to order early to avoid the expected crush. "We started off the year slowly ... but all of a sudden our order volume has been unbelievable," said company president William MacDowell late in February.

If you are thinking of planting a home garden, you should do some checking before you start digging. Ask local gardeners for advice on what types of vegetables grow best in your area and find out about soil conditions and planting times.

What about cholesterol?

Columbia — The way to a man's heart is still through his stomach, but this old saying has recently taken on a second meaning: the food you eat can endanger your heart, or protect it, depending largely on your intake of cholesterol.

The importance of lowering cholesterol in the diet has been widely discussed in recent years and new avenues for research have surfaced. However, this onslaught of both fact and opinion has often created much misunderstanding, doubt, and even a general lack of concern with cholesterol in the diet.

According to your local Heart Association, there is an urgent need for concern, both because there are many common misunderstandings about cholesterol and because many people's future health is at stake, especially your chances of acquiring coronary heart disease.

Why all the concern? First, a heart attack is almost always caused by atherosclerosis, a blockage of the arteries due to the buildup of fatty deposits on the inner walls of the arteries which robs the heart of blood, and it has been found that high cholesterol levels are linked to the development of atherosclerosis.

Numberous studies of various kinds have all produced evidence showing that an elevated blood cholesterol level has a very strong, positive association with the probability of death from coronary heart disease.

Second, current data indicates that the average American has higher than desirable levels of blood cholesterol and consumes excessive calories, saturated fat and cholesterol.

According to the American Heart Association's Committee on Nutrition, the risk of cardiovascular disease, independent of other risk factors, definitely known proportion of women, maintain cholesterol levels at or below this figure. At a level of 250 mg or higher, common in American adults, the risk of developing coronary disease is twice that of persons with levels under 220 mg.

What are some of the common areas of misunderstanding concerning cholesterol?

There are many areas of confusion with diet cholesterol. The following true-false statements may aid in clearing up some of these misconceptions.

Diet is the only factor related to the risk of heart disease.

False. It must be stressed that diet, or restricting cholesterol intake, is not the whole answer to avoiding heart disease, but it is one very important part of the whole answer. The earlier you start on a proper diet, the better.

Other risk factors identified as contributing to heart disease are high blood pressure, cigarette smoking, obesity, lack of exercise, family history and diabetes. These factors are additive, meaning that the more risk factors present, the higher your chances of heart disease. In other words, if you smoke and it is known that you have high blood pressure, then it becomes more important for you to watch your eating habits and cholesterol consumption.

Atherosclerosis is common only in older adults.

False. The goal in lowering cholesterol levels is to raise the proportion of polyunsaturates to saturated fats. Saturated fats can't be eliminated entirely; there is some in many foods we eat. But you can eat more poultry and fish in place of meat. Use of skimmed or low-fat milk is advisable as a valuable source of nutrients. In cooking, use vegetable oils instead of solid fats like butter and lard, and select margarine high in polyunsaturates.

Eggs must be eliminated in low cholesterol diets.

False. "Again, 'cutting down, not out' is the rule. Most low cholesterol diets recommend in the range of 3 to 5 eggs per week. Eggs deserve special attention when one is restricting cholesterol intake because they are the most concentrated source of cholesterol of any food. According to the American Heart Association, one egg yolk contains approximately 85 per cent of the cholesterol recommended as the maximum total daily intake for the American public—namely 300 mg. The yolk of a large egg contains 275 mg of cholesterol. Organ meats and shellfish are also high in cholesterol while fruits, vegetables, grains, cereals and nuts have no cholesterol.

Cholesterol in the blood comes from two sources.

Some is manufactured in the body and some is taken in with food. Cholesterol is a normal component of bile acids and some hormones and is therefore essential for certain body processes. However, the amount the body manufactures is sufficient for these purposes.

Everyone should restrict their cholesterol intake.

False. Certain studies have shown that some people can handle high levels of cholesterol in their diet. Dr. Margaret Flynn, professor of nutrition at the University of Missouri Medical Center, believes that a person's cholesterol level, or the ability to handle cholesterol, is based largely on genetics, not diet. Various enzymes work to break down high levels of cholesterol in the blood.

Dr. Flynn also feels that challenging the body with excessive amounts of cholesterol might lead to higher levels of cholesterol in the blood. "I think all of us should know if we can handle cholesterol and then lay it to rest," she says. "People are more intelligent now and more are requesting cholesterol checks when they see their doctors."

The best advice from your local Heart Association concerning cholesterol, or any of the risk factors, is "appraise yourself." Find out what your cholesterol level is. Check to see if your blood pressure is normal. Investigate and see whether your family history shows signs of premature death from heart disease. The answers to these questions are important. Estimates are that 1,036,900 people will die of heart disease during 1977.

Dear Ann Landers

Reader writes letter to those who fail to visit ill friends

Dear Ann Landers: My husband has an incurable illness. I could write a book about the attitudes of people. May I make a few suggestions to those who have said, "I've been wanting to come and see him but I didn't know what to say."

By all means come to see him. Now. Today. He won't appreciate your presence at his funeral — and neither will I if you don't come see him when he can enjoy your company.

And here are some things you can say:

"I've been praying for you."

"I've been thinking about you and if there is anything I can do, call me anytime."

"I'm going to bring you lunch or supper tomorrow."

"I'm going to drive your car pool this month."

"I'll take your children to a movie this afternoon."

"I'm bringing you a book I think will help."

"I'll take you to the doctor this week."

"I'll come keep you company so your wife can go get her hair done."

Sign me — Coping. Dear Coping: Thank you for a letter that lays it on the line. Some people need only to be told — and sister, you told 'em.

Dear Ann Landers: I live in Springfield, Illinois, and I'm struggling to keep body and soul together. My husband (age 29) left me with three little kids. We were divorced ten months ago and the court ordered him to pay $140 a month child support, but I haven't received a dime in five months and I don't know where he is.

I work in the shipping department of a warehouse and make barely enough to keep a roof over our heads. If it weren't for a kind neighbor who takes care of my two youngest kids, I'd be sunk.

Everyone says I should track down my ex-husband and make him pay up. He is a mechanic, has always made good money and is never out of work. But HOW can I find him? My suggestions will be deeply appreciated. — Tired

Dear Tired: Call the Illinois Department of Public Aid, which is listed in your phone book. (Other states have corresponding agencies.) The "tracking service" will cost $20 but it's worth it. The IDPA contacts relatives, creditors, former employers, the union, the automobile registration department, unemployment agencies and the Department of Labor.

If they still can't find the skipper, they will enlist the cooperation of Social Security, the Internal Revenue Service, the Defense Department and the Civil Service Commission.

Once he is found, the Illinois Department of Public Aid will take legal action against him or you can get your own lawyer.

Too many wives give up because they don't realize they have alternatives. The rat goes merrily on his way while his family gets the neck of the chicken and the rumble seat ride.

CONFIDENTIAL to Wanted — Your Definition of A "Reformer": A reformer is a person who has the uncomfortable feeling that somewhere, someone is having more fun than he is.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers's booklet, "Marriage — What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your requests to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Today in U.S. history

By the Associated Press

Today is Monday, April 11, the 101st day of 1977. There are 264 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1814, Napoleon Bonaparte abdicated as Emperor of France.

On this date: In 1689, William and Mary were crowned king and queen of England.

In 1713, Spain ceded Gibraltar to England.

In 1899, the Philippine islands were transferred from Spain to the United States.

In 1921, a telephone line between the United States and Cuba was opened by President Warren Harding.

In 1951, President Harry Truman relieved General Douglas MacArthur of his command in the Far East.

In 1961, France said it would no longer contribute men or money to United Nations military enterprises.

Ten years ago: President Lyndon Johnson and Latin American presidents opened a conference in Punta del Este, Uruguay.

Five years ago: The death toll was put at more than 4,000 in an earthquake in southern Iran.

One year ago: Exploration for oil off the New England coast began.

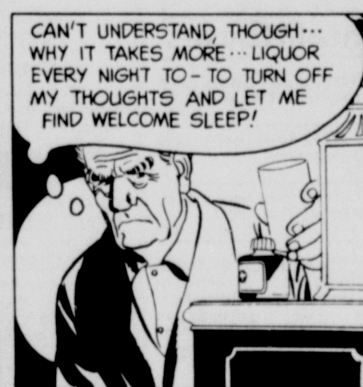

Today's birthday: Mrs. Ethel Kennedy is 49 years old.

Thought for today: To speak kindly does not hurt the tongue — a French proverb.

The SCB Process is a proprietary system developed by Adhesive Engineering Company. It is the only complete epoxy injection system that can successfully repair concrete structures cracked by: shrinkage during cure; mechanical overload; temperature changes; base of foundation settlement; and human error.

High strength, low viscosity Concrete adhesives are injected full depth into fissures in concrete down to 0.002 in wide in most cases. When the injected adhesive cures, usually in a few hours, it seals the crack network completely and also restores the concrete to a monolithic load-bearing condition.

The SCB Process is the only crack repair method available from over 50 factory-trained and licensed applicators throughout the world.

The lady he kissed was his mother.

Bluff area watershed project being reviewed

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Under a directive from the President, the Soil Conservation Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture is reviewing 24 small watershed projects in Kansas and 13 in Missouri to see if they are worth spending more money on.

The focus also will be on their environmental impacts and whether their dams and dikes are safe.

The watershed projects were authorized by Congress mainly as means of preventing soil erosion and siltation of lakes and waterways. In many areas they have been promoted by those who oppose the building of large flood control projects. Their ponds and small lakes also provide water supplies, recreation and water for irrigation.

Robert K. Griffin, head of the Soil Conservation Service in Kansas, and Kenneth G. McManus, his counterpart in Missouri, said they expect an initial screening will quickly identify some projects that are unquestionably sound.

They are under a directive to determine these by April 29 and decide by June 15 which of the others are questionable. Public hearings on these are to be held in their vicinities before July 1, and final recommendations are to be ready for the President by July 15.

The 13 projects in Missouri: —East Fork of Big Creek, near Bethany.

—Willow Creek, near Richmond.

—Little Sni-A-Bar Creek, near Odessa.

—Clarence Cannon Memorial Creek, near Elsberry.

—Lost Creek, near Neosho.

—Upper Little Black and Lower Little Black, west of Poplar Bluff.

—South Fork of the Blackwater River near Warrensburg.

—Callahan Creek near Columbia.

—Bear Creek and Buck-Doe Run Creeks and Durgens Creek, in the three counties in the northeast tip of Missouri.

—Grindstone-Lost-Muddy Creek, in the Gallatin-Mayville-Albany area in northwest Missouri.

Missouri-born brothers featured in documentary

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — A story of murder and robbery committed in Connecticut and Missouri by two brothers has turned an entire college class into a team of moviemakers.

The criminal justice students at Western Connecticut State College (Wesconn) became caught up in the violent story of John and James Pardue last fall when they were assigned to do a brief documentary on the infamous brothers.

It isn't difficult to understand why 17 of the students continued the ever-developing project into the spring term. Writers and television producers have been studying the commercial possibilities of the story for several years.

The Pardues were born in St. Louis in the 1940s. Their father's petroleum engineering job brought them to Westport in 1957.

The student investigators found through interviews with neighbors, relatives, police and others that the brothers' criminal record goes back to their minor arrest for shooting seagulls in that prosperous shoreline town.

Within a decade, however, they allegedly entered the big-time with two bank robberies in nearby New York State and Connecticut towns, followed by the slayings of two accomplices. Next reportedly came the murders of their father and grandmother in Missouri in 1969, sandwiched between two bank robberies.

This crescendo of crime led to the 1970 bombing of Danbury police headquarters and a car to divert attention from their theft of more than $50,000 in cash and checks from a local bank.

The documentary that is emerging from the students' research is tentatively entitled "Madmen, Murderers or Masterminds: An Unsolved Case." It is considered unsolved because there have been no convictions on most of the crimes.

In 1971 John Pardue, 28, was shot to death by a guard when he tried to escape from the Bridgeport federal building using a rifle his wife smuggled to him under her dress. Police say he confessed to many of the crimes on his deathbed.

James Pardue, now 29, was found innocent of the Connecticut and Missouri charges on a ruling he was insane. He was released from a Missouri mental hospital last summer but soon was a fugitive again and was recaptured later in Colorado on charges of rape, sodomy and larceny.

Students found acquaintances of the Pardues still uneasy when they were interviewed last fall, with James at large.

"They still are scared. They think he's lived a charmed life," said Joseph Becker, a senior from Danbury.

A number of questions hang over the cases, which made the students' project all the more interesting.

For example, evidence that John Pardue was treated for cancer of the thyroid suggests that his violent nature may have been related to the illness.

Another question is: which brother was the mastermind?

The students hope to cap their 4,000 manhours of work on the project within two weeks and present their documentary locally on cable television.

Their research has led to interviews with 153 persons, correspondence with 21 more, more than 4,000 miles of travel, including Lusby, Md., where James Pardue was arrested in 1970, and a payment of $400 out of their own pockets on equipment.

Last month a number of the students recreated the Danbury bank robbery before the television camera. Twenty-six persons were injured in the three explosions set by the Pardues to create havoc and protect their escape.

History Prof. David W. Detzer, who assigned the class project, said he has been amazed by the scope and enthusiasm of his students' work.

"And it's the most exciting thing I've done in 17 years," he added.

"We've gotten to know them (the Pardues) so well that we could probably sit down and talk with them very easily — at a distance, of course," said Richard Baker, a junior from New Milford.

They found John to be the more violent-prone of the two, a "gun and dog freak" who had sophisticated weapons including what one source said was a "hit-man's rifle" valued at more than $7,000.

Possibly under his direction, the two set up what the students described as a mini-arsenal in the Idaho hills near Cataldo. It was reported to contain handgrenades, machine guns, supplies and an electric generator.

John's lawyer quoted the prisoners as saying shortly before his death that he had created a "story bigger than Dillinger's," he said.

James seemed to break down mentally under the pressure of prosecution, although psychiatric authorities still disagree on how much of his actions were beyond his control.

The students were struck by the brothers' apparent desire to push their crimes to the dramatic extreme.

For example, they said, James and a woman fled from the Danbury bombings and robbery in one car. Meanwhile, John went to a taxi terminal.

reportedly still carrying the loot in a bag, and sat chatting with two drivers about the mayhem still occurring in the city.

Not long after that holdup, before the identities of the robbers were known, Danbury police served a warrant on John stemming from a complaint by his first wife that he had stolen things from her.

Answering the front door of his Danbury house, John asked the policeman — probably with some apprehension — what the charge was, the students said.

When the officer explained, John reportedly called to his wife: "Don't worry. It's just larceny."
